Potentially harmful air pollutants can be present inside virtually any indoor environment, from homes to hospitals. Today, indoor air quality (IAQ) is recognized as one of our most important environmental concerns. The inadequacy of IAQ has become one of the most common varieties of occupational health complaints today.

Dusty Ducts provides services for assessing the indoor environment, possible remediation approaches, and other issues related to indoor air problems.

Our approach is to develop an IAQ profile, which can provide useful information in developing a program for your company.

Dusty Ducts offers clients additional services such as machine cleaning and interior plant cleaning. This includes exterior ductwork, lights, fixtures, piping and so forth.
